Adherence to guidance

1. It should be evident from the fund management company's board minutes that the fund management company is acting in accordance with this guidance, if this is the case.

PART I

Delegate Oversight

Scope

1. This Part sets out the Central Bank's guidance for boards of directors of investment companies, UCITS management companies, alternative investment fund managers (AIFMs) and AIF management companies incorporated and authorised in Ireland (referred to in this Part as "relevant companies").
2. A board of a relevant company has ultimate responsibility for all aspects of management that are not specifically reserved to the shareholders (whether by constitutive documents or applicable law¹). While boards may delegate tasks internally, it is also common in Ireland for certain tasks to be delegated externally. The focus of this document is on the role of boards where significant tasks are delegated externally. It is not deemed necessary at this time to issue guidance on other aspects of a board's work. In those regards, boards are recommended to exercise prudent judgement having regard to, but not necessarily confining themselves to, widely accepted standards of good governance and to have regard to the particular challenges of the relevant company.
3. Such delegation, and the legal responsibilities of delegates, does not reduce the board's ultimate responsibility. It follows that the board must, notwithstanding any such delegation, at all times retain and exercise overall control of the relevant company's management.

4. There are also limits on the extent to which delegation is legally permissible. In particular, under European legislation as transposed, AIFMs and UCITS management companies are under an obligation not to delegate to the extent that they become letterbox entities².
5. The responsibilities of a UCITS management company and an AIFM, as set out in applicable legislation, differ. A UCITS management company is defined as a company whose regular business is the management of UCITS (defined as including investment management, fund administration and distribution). An AIFM may carry on all these functions but is required to perform investment management (defined as encompassing portfolio management and risk management). In this Part, no distinction is drawn between UCITS and AIFs, but, in the application of the guidance it sets out, account should be taken of the specific circumstances which prevail.
6. The scope of this Part covers:
 - A. investment management
 - B. distribution
 - C. risk management (both operational and investment risk)
 - D. operation and administration
 - E. support and resourcing
 - F. boards of externally-managed investment companies
7. The main body of this Part concerns the responsibilities of relevant companies (and, by extension, of their boards, which have ultimate management responsibility) which are authorised in Ireland as AIFMs or UCITS management companies. This encompasses:
 - self-managed UCITS and AIFs; and

² Regulation 23(2) of the EC (UCITS) Regulations 2011 and Regulation 21(4) of the EU (AIFM) Regulations 2013.

- UCITS management companies and AIFMs.
8. In some cases UCITS management companies and AIFMs will have been appointed by investment companies (i.e. UCITS or AIFs). A further section F therefore addresses issues specific to the responsibilities retained by such investment companies (and, by extension, their boards).
9. In this Part the term:
- “delegate” means, in the context of any relevant company or the board of any relevant company, the fund administration company, investment manager, risk manager and distributor;
 - “depository”, in the context of an investment fund, includes reference to any trustee or custodian, if applicable, of that investment fund;
 - “investment company” means an investment company authorised in accordance with Part 24 of the Companies Act 2014 or the European Communities (Undertakings for Collective Investment in Transferable Securities) Regulations 2011 (S.I. No. 352 of 2011) or an Irish Collective Asset-management Vehicle (‘ICAV’) registered with and authorised by the Central Bank under the ICAV Act 2015;
 - “investment fund” means a collective investment scheme whether structured as an investment company, unit trust, common contractual fund, investment limited partnership or otherwise³;
 - “fund management company” means an entity regulated as an AIFM or a UCITS management company⁴ in each case incorporated or otherwise organised, and authorised under the laws of Ireland. In the context of section F, however, it may encompass a management company organised and authorised in another EU member state or an AIFM established outside the EU; and ³ Investment funds may be organised and authorised under the laws of jurisdictions other than Ireland. The laws applicable to such an investment fund may impose on a management company additional, or alternative, obligations to those imposed in the case of an Irish investment fund. The Central Bank has focussed only on investment funds organised and authorised under the laws of Ireland and has assumed that nothing in the laws of such other jurisdictions would affect the recommendations made in this Part. Of course, the board of a management company must be satisfied that the management company has complied with all applicable legal and regulatory requirements. It follows therefore that it should also be satisfied that there is no conflict between the respective requirements of each relevant jurisdiction.

⁴ This includes any self-managed investment company which is itself regulated as an AIFM or UCITS management company

- “investment management” means that which, in an AIFMD context, would be encompassed by the portfolio management aspects of investment management.
10. The provisions set out in this Part are intended to assist relevant companies by providing an overview of the approach recommended by the Central Bank. This Part does not purport to address every aspect of such practice in detail. The overriding approach should be that the board should design its governance practices so as to be appropriate and commensurate to the business of the relevant company and, where applicable, the investment funds it manages.

General observations

Relationship between fund management company and delegates

11. Good governance requires clarity as to the allocation of responsibilities, documented policies and procedures, structures which foster constructive challenge, and the effective provision of appropriate information to boards. The adoption by a board of the general approach identified in this Part will not in itself achieve the objective of good governance. The environment and culture in which such an approach operates are also key.
12. The relationship between a fund management company and a delegate must be such as to enable competent and appropriate management of the fund management company and a shared understanding as to how to achieve it. The following features are essential to such a relationship:
- Openness: Full, frank and open dialogue between the board and the delegates is essential. A delegate should provide all information that the board needs in order to discharge its responsibilities. The scope of that information should be clearly identified by the board and agreed with the delegate;
 - Engagement: Directors should be attentive to their duties as directors and dedicate sufficient time to their discharge. The Central Bank’s guidance on directors’ time commitments is relevant in this regard. A delegate should recognise the directors' duties and facilitate the discharge by the directors of their ultimate responsibility for the delegated tasks;

- Co-operation: A fund management company and its delegates should recognise their common interest in a well-run fund management company that serves the interests of investors in the funds that it manages.
- Dialogue: A delegate should accept that directors, in order to discharge their duties, may need to seek further information on proposals and performance, ask probing questions and provide constructive criticism. The relationship between the delegate and the board should be such that directors are encouraged to do so. Nothing in the way directors are appointed or support is provided to directors should signal any reluctance on the part of delegates to support open board-level challenge.

13. The relationship between the fund management company and its delegates should be such as will support and facilitate the exercise by the board of its ultimate responsibility for, and control over, the management of that fund management company.

Retained tasks and delegated tasks

14. A fund management company may, notwithstanding the ultimate management responsibility of its board, delegate in whole or in part certain specific tasks which form part of the fund management company's management functions. While the tasks may be delegated, however, ultimate responsibility for those management functions themselves cannot be delegated. Delegation is permitted but responsibility is retained. The terms of any delegation should, therefore, be such as will facilitate the discharge by directors of:
- their duties to the relevant fund management company (including those relating to that company's discharge of its obligations in respect of investment funds it manages); and

- any other responsibilities assumed by them to other persons, for example to shareholders (investors) pursuant to the prospectus, where it is a self-managed investment company.

Retained tasks

15. The board should, notwithstanding any delegation of tasks, take all major strategic and operational decisions affecting the fund management company and any investment funds it manages⁵.
16. Examples of key responsibilities that should be retained by the board include the following:
 - issue of the prospectus, where the fund management company has responsibility in this regard;
 - review and approval of financial accounts and investment fund documentation, where the fund management company has responsibility in this regard;
 - temporary suspension of redemptions, or other measures taken in response to adverse financial developments, where the fund management company has responsibility in this regard;
 - approval and periodic review of the business plan or programme of operations, as the case may be, and compliance with it;
 - its own internal governance, including the appointment and retention of directors and any staff, the capacity of directors to fulfil their roles and conflict of interest policies;
 - adoption and review of a comprehensive suite of policies and procedures and, to the extent that reliance is placed on the policies and procedures of delegates, periodic review of the appropriateness of such reliance;
 - satisfying itself that arrangements are in place to enable compliance with applicable legal and regulatory requirements;

⁵ Subject always to any matters reserved to its shareholders (in the case of decisions affecting it), or to the shareholders (or other investors) or board (or other internal management) of any externally-managed investment fund (in the case of decisions affecting such an investment fund). The below comments on retained tasks should be read subject to this.

- appointment, oversight and removal of delegates (including the basis on which delegates may further delegate tasks);
 - investment approach (see section A below);
 - launches or closures of sub-funds and share classes; and
 - distribution strategies including the jurisdictions into which the investment funds are marketed.
17. The board may of course discharge these responsibilities with the benefit of advice and recommendations from delegates. Given the nature of its responsibilities, however, it should consider any such advice and recommendations and reserve the right not to act on such advice and recommendations where appropriate. Decisions on matters reserved to the board should be minuted in precise, unequivocal and directive terms.

Delegated tasks

18. The main body of this Part deals with the oversight of tasks which are delegated.
19. The delegation of a task does not release the board from its ultimate responsibility for the relevant management functions. The board should satisfy itself that the manner of delegation is such that the relevant board responsibilities can be discharged, that management roles delegated internally can be effectively performed (see Part III on organisational effectiveness) and that the external delegate performs the relevant task to an appropriate standard.
20. A board should exercise skill, care and diligence when identifying and approving the appointment of a delegate for any task. It should satisfy itself as to the capacity of the prospective delegate to undertake such task to the required standard.
21. It should continue to exercise skill, care and diligence in its continuing oversight of delegates. To this end the board should receive and be satisfied with periodic reports from appropriately authorised personnel of the delegate.

22. Such reports should address compliance with relevant legal and regulatory requirements and with relevant policies and operating procedures (including those of the fund management company and the delegate as relevant), noting the extent of any breaches; error reporting should be included. The board should identify when standards fall short of the required levels and require remedial action to be taken.

23. In addition, boards should receive and be satisfied with reports or presentations from their delegates addressing significant developments in the delegate's business, including development plans or changes in organisation, business mix or client base, outcomes of regulatory inspections and external and internal audit reviews, and business continuity programmes.

A. Investment management

24. The board should seek a report or presentation from the investment manager prior to the issue of the prospectus and launch of the investment fund or sub-fund (the “relevant fund” in this Part) to inform it of the investment approach the investment manager proposes to take. It should approve the proposed investment approach, taken as a whole. For this purpose, the board should be provided with information about at least the following matters:

- the investment objective and policies;
- any benchmark against which the relevant fund’s performance will be presented to investors and/or used in the calculation of performance fees;
- the range of assets into which it is proposed the relevant fund should invest;
- the portfolio management team’s credentials for the task;
- the investment processes to be adopted by the portfolio management team;
- the type of restrictions and limitations imposed on the management of the relevant fund, additional to those specified in the prospectus, for example those dealing with large exposures or leverage, and the related control arrangements;
- frequency of unit dealing, the basis for pricing relevant fund units, and any anti-dilution measures;
- the investment manager’s trading protocols, including order management, best execution, allocation of business to brokers and commission sharing;
- the basis on which any securities lending is undertaken, including fees, counterparty risk and collateral management;
- the extent to which it is proposed to use financial derivative instruments, the controls to which such use will be subject and applicable policies in respect of collateral management, counterparty risk and leverage management; and

- processes for the management of liquidity risks, including the potential for liquidity mismatches between assets and liabilities, and the actions to be taken to mitigate them.
25. Once the relevant fund has been established and launched, the board should oversee the investment manager's compliance with the approved investment approach. While it is not the role of the board to take day-to-day investment decisions that are properly within the remit of the portfolio manager, it should put in place processes under which it monitors, and the investment manager is accountable for, the delegated tasks.
 26. The board should receive and be satisfied with comprehensive annual presentations from the investment manager detailing developments affecting the manager itself, the investment process and strategy, the investment team, progress and performance (including strategy for responding to any underperformance) and any proposed development of the investment approach. Changes to the investment approach at any time should be subject to approval by the board. A suitable representative of the investment manager should be available to answer questions in advance of and at the board meeting where such changes are being discussed.
 27. The board should also receive and be satisfied with regular (at least quarterly, unless the particular circumstances indicate otherwise) reports during the year. These should include details of any departures from the investment approach approved by the board or breaches of the investment manager's internal policies, and any remedial action taken.
 28. All directors should have a good understanding of all relevant aspects of the investment manager's business and policies. This might require site visits and/or meetings with senior management, in addition to the regular presentations and reports from the personnel working directly on the account where practicable. Such site visits are often beneficial and should be given positive consideration.

B. Distribution

29. At the time of the launch of a new investment fund (including any sub-fund), the board should approve the proposed distribution strategy, including:
- who will undertake the tasks associated with distribution and any proposed delegation;
 - the marketing strategy and approach;
 - target markets and channels, including the competitive landscape;
 - the jurisdictions into which distribution is proposed, whether immediately or in due course;
 - the control framework for compliance with any local legal, regulatory, tax or other compliance requirements; and
 - the control framework for marketing in a manner consistent with the terms of the prospectus.
30. The board should receive and be satisfied with regular reports on distribution, including:
- patterns of distribution, current progress and development, and resourcing;
 - sales flows in the period and current pipeline;
 - any proposed new developments and initiatives; and
 - any local legal, regulatory, tax or other compliance issues
31. The arrangements with any distributor should be structured so that marketing activities are required to be consistent with the agreed distribution strategy. The board should be entitled therefore to receive on request any marketing materials prepared by the distributor, including fact sheets and generic presentations to prospective investors. Boards should seek such marketing material whenever they have reason to believe that such material includes significant elaborations on the matters covered in the investment approach. The board should also examine such material if there is a perceived risk that its content conflicts with the prospectus.

C. Risk management

32. The board should adopt a risk management framework which:
- identifies the applicable risks;
 - confirms the risk appetite;
 - identifies any appropriate risk mitigants; and
 - incorporates appropriate policies for the measurement, management and monitoring of risk, including the implementation as appropriate of any risk mitigants.
33. The risk appetite statement should be appropriate and proportionate to the nature, scale and complexity of the activities of the fund management company and the investment fund(s) under management. The risk policies should include clear procedures (with thresholds where appropriate) for reporting to the board, and considering breaches of any limits.
34. The board should keep the risk management framework, and its constituent elements, under periodic review.
35. The board should agree how its responsibility for risk oversight and management is discharged, given any delegations of tasks, and establish a shared understanding with each delegate as to their respective roles. The board should determine the quality, type and format of risk-related information which it requires and put in place arrangements to receive it.
36. While the board may obtain advice and recommendations on risk issues, including periodic review of the risk management framework, it should retain the ultimate decision-making capability. While it may seek advice relating to risk management and delegate tasks relating to the implementation of the policies, it should ensure that it receives and reviews comprehensive reports from any such delegate.

Investment risk

37. A fund management company's risk management framework should address all significant investment risks to which any investment fund it manages is exposed, which may include some or all of the following:
- market risk, including major external developments which could impact investments
 - portfolio risk, including quantitative analysis
 - liquidity risk, including the risk of investor redemptions requiring the disposal of assets of limited liquidity
 - country or regional risk
 - credit risk
 - counterparty risk
 - leverage
38. Investment risk appetite should be set having regard to:
- the investment objective and strategy and product design of the investment fund(s) under management;
 - the likely nature of potential investors in the investment fund(s) and the appropriate disclosure of risks; and
 - the liquidity of the assets in which the investment fund(s) invests and the potential for any asset/liability mismatch
39. The board should receive and be satisfied with regular reports assessing risk levels relative to the risk appetite(s) for the investment funds under management.

Operational risk

40. A board should satisfy itself that the business of delegates is effectively managed and controlled, and that appropriate operational risk policies and procedures of the delegates are in place and subject to regular review by the delegates. It should receive and be satisfied with regular reports on the performance of the delegate, including the following as they relate to the investment fund under management:

- significant IT incidents
- fraud
- complaints
- outsourcing
- dealing errors
- pricing errors
- other breaches

Operational risk - Enterprise risk and business continuity

41. Boards should receive and be satisfied with reports on risks which could impact the fund management company and the investment funds that it manages. These would include:
- large dealing risk
 - key person risk
 - failure of a delegate or sub-delegate
 - reputational risk
 - regulatory risk
 - continued capacity of systems and personnel
42. In respect of delegated tasks, a board may consider it appropriate to rely upon business continuity programmes maintained by delegates. It should however satisfy itself that
- those programmes are sufficient to discharge the board's own obligations for the relevant tasks; and
 - the delegates' programmes, taken together with any maintained by the board (for example where tasks have been retained rather than delegated), encompass all relevant activities of the company and the investment funds under management.
43. Such reliance should be the subject of periodic review.

D. Investment operations and administration

44. When appointing a delegate to take on operational and administrative tasks, a board should establish in particular that the delegate has:
- operational resilience (the ability to provide an uninterrupted service to the required standard even in adverse circumstances);
 - robust risk management policies and procedures;
 - sufficient capacity and flexibility to manage varying levels of business including potential variations in the fund management company's requirements over time; and
 - suitable procedures for maintaining confidentiality and security of information.
45. The board should receive and be satisfied with regular reports on operational matters, including but not limited to:
- depositary reports, where the board considers that they are necessary for the discharge by the fund management company of its responsibilities;
 - fund administrator reports;
 - performance, including appropriate error and breach reporting;
 - oversight by delegates of any outsourcing arrangements they put in place, and performance of sub-delegates;
 - operation of anti-money laundering policies;
 - IT systems issues, including significant changes and developments of relevance to the board;
 - resourcing of the provision of services to the fund management company.
46. The board should adopt and keep up to date an appropriate valuation policy. It should receive and be satisfied with regular reports on exceptional valuation items, such as stale prices and fair valued securities, and appropriate error reporting. The board should receive reports covering material and non-material pricing errors which identify patterns in causation and satisfy itself that those errors have been mitigated. In the case of illiquid assets, it should satisfy itself as to the process by which values are set.

47. The board should approve and keep under review a budget for payments over and above the investment management fee which may be charged to the investment fund and receive periodic reports.

E. Support and resourcing

48. Fund management companies need to have sufficient resources at their disposal to enable them to carry out their functions properly, taking into account the nature, scale and complexity of their business. It is the responsibility of the board to determine in the light of its particular circumstances the appropriate resourcing of these functions and to satisfy itself that responsibilities for undertaking delegated tasks are allocated accordingly.
49. The matters on which the board will require support and resources (in addition to the support of the official company secretary, the duties of which are prescribed by law) may include, without limitation, the following:
- proactive monitoring of developments between board meetings, assessing which if any require the immediate attention of the board, and arranging any necessary action;
 - management of board meetings including adequate planning and preparation, preparing the agenda, managing the attendees, actioning of board decisions, briefing of directors on developments and preparation where appropriate of executive summaries for directors;
 - management of other meetings and visits of directors which may include training sessions, due diligence visits, board evaluation meetings or planning and strategy sessions;
 - management of documents, including meeting minutes, business plan, policies, procedures, offering documents, material contracts, registers and correspondence;
 - preparation of reports, summaries and other material relevant to the board's considerations and decisions;
 - timely preparation of half-yearly and audited annual financial accounts;
 - managing an annual calendar, so that all matters required to be considered by the directors through the year are dealt with in an orderly fashion, and facilitating the timely preparation and circulation of papers to the board to enable directors to give proper prior consideration to all relevant matters;

- regular review of the fund management company's suite of policies and procedures, and preparing any required revised drafts for consideration and approval by the board, including collecting relevant information from delegates, monitoring regulatory and other external developments and evaluating the need for changes.
50. There is a variety of potential resourcing models for the necessary support including, without limitation, models based on employees of, and/or secondees to, the fund management company and/or services provided by external delegates. The appropriateness of any proposed model will depend on the circumstances of, and any legal and regulatory requirements applicable to, the relevant fund management company. The board should satisfy itself that the model selected is appropriate in the relevant circumstances.
51. Individual directors may be designated as having particular managerial functions. Such designation should not, however, be taken to affect the board's overall collective responsibility for the function, and procedures should be adopted so that matters continue to be escalated for consideration by the full board where appropriate. When designating an individual director for such a managerial function, boards should be satisfied that:
- the individual has the requisite skills and experience for the role;
 - sufficient support and resources are available to the individual to enable the role to be discharged; and
 - the designation does not compromise the ability of the individual, or the board as a whole, to satisfy any applicable independence requirement.
52. Where a board engages support in discharging its functions, it should retain control at all times, and the respective responsibilities of the provider of that support and of the board should be clearly documented so as to facilitate the exercise by the board of its ultimate responsibility for, and control over, the management functions to which that support relates.

53. A director or directors may on occasion consider it necessary to obtain independent advice on issues relating to the board's functions and responsibilities. It is desirable for a director's contract to enable the director to do so.

F. Boards of externally-managed investment companies

54. The fund management company is responsible for ensuring that it and its investment funds under management comply with regulatory obligations. The board of an externally-managed investment company should ensure that it supports the ability of the fund management company to comply with all regulatory obligations. But it also needs to satisfy itself that the delegation to the fund management company is working effectively for investors.
55. Externally-managed investment companies are not regulated as fund management companies. Nevertheless the board of an externally-managed investment company retains ultimate responsibility for its management⁶, including the appointment and oversight of the fund management company, which is its principal delegate.
56. The relationship between an externally-managed investment company and its fund management company may be structured in a number of different ways. The two entities should agree in the light of their particular circumstances the appropriate and proportionate approach to the recommendations in this section.
57. The board of the externally-managed investment company retains responsibility for issuing the prospectus. It should expect to receive information about the investment approach of the fund management company, as outlined in section A of this Part. It also retains responsibility for publishing audited financial statements (a responsibility shared with the fund management company in the case of an investment company authorised as an AIF).
58. The board of the externally-managed investment company should satisfy itself that its relationship with the fund management company is such that the relevant board responsibilities are discharged, and that the fund management company performs the relevant tasks it is required to undertake to an appropriate standard. It should receive and be satisfied with regular and appropriately detailed reports from a senior representative of the fund management company in this regard. It should further consider and identify any conflicts of interest that may arise and should satisfy itself that such conflicts are being appropriately managed. In general, it should hold the fund management company to the same standards of accountability as the preceding sections of this Part recommend that a fund management company should set for its delegates. It should also receive and be satisfied with regular, direct reports from the depository. It does not, however, need to replicate the detailed oversight of delegates by the fund management company.

59. The board of the externally-managed investment company should expect to receive and be satisfied with regular reports from the fund management company describing:
- its performance (whether directly or through delegates) of the investment management tasks outlined in section A of this Part;
 - significant developments in the distribution of the investment fund, including any significant legal, regulatory, tax or other compliance issues;
 - its performance (whether directly or delegated) of the risk management tasks outlined in section C of this Part;
 - its performance (whether directly or delegated) of the operational and administrative tasks outlined in section D of this Part;
 - the extent of its delegation of any of the tasks and its control framework for oversight of its delegates' performance.
60. The board should also consider whether it should, in addition to reports from the fund management company, require periodic direct reports from (including, if appropriate, attendance at board meetings by) the delegates of the fund management company.
61. A fund management company may include reports received from its delegates in its reports to the board of an externally-managed investment company. However, a fund management company's report should not consist solely of the transmission of reports received from its delegates. The fund management company's report should include commentary from the fund management company on how it has performed its role.

62. Some AIF “management companies” may appoint external AIFMs. These AIF “management companies” are not regulated as AIFMs but retain responsibility for the AIFs under management and the oversight of the AIFM. The board of the AIF management company also retains responsibility for issuing the prospectus (unless the AIF is itself an investment company) and for publishing audited financial statements (unless the AIF is itself an investment company), the latter responsibility being shared with the AIFM.
63. In such cases, the board of the AIF management company should apply the same approach to the oversight of the AIFM as described above in the case of an investment company.
64. For avoidance of any doubt, this section (F) is limited to externally-managed investment companies and to AIF management companies with external AIFMs, and does not apply to other forms of investment fund or fund management company.

PART II

Organisational Effectiveness⁷

1. One of the independent directors of a fund management company, which could be the Chair if he or she is independent, should undertake an organisational effectiveness role. The purpose of this role is to ensure that there is an independent director within the fund management company who has the specific task of keeping the effectiveness of the organisational arrangements of the company under ongoing review, with his or her reports being submitted to the board for discussion and decision.
2. The independent director who undertakes this task will be on alert for organisational issues and will escalate these to the board. They will be change leaders who bring proposals to improve effectiveness to the board. They will champion these proposals and will drive through the change agenda to ensure that agreed actions are implemented.
3. Having a person with responsibility for reviewing organisational effectiveness should ensure that a fund management company does not continue to adhere to agreed organisational arrangements when these are no longer appropriate because, for example, the fund management company has grown and developed, because market practice has moved on or because one of the arrangements suffers from an unanticipated conflict of interests.
4. Some non-exhaustive examples of the types of matters which the independent director undertaking the organisational effectiveness role will be involved in are: monitoring the adequacy of a fund management company's internal resources to its day-to-day managerial roles; reviewing the organisational structure of the fund management company and considering whether it remains fit for purpose; considering the conflicts of interest affecting the fund management company and its investment funds under management and initiating action, such as escalation to the board, where these are having or are likely in the near future to have an adverse impact; reviewing the board composition and reporting on this to the board; organising periodic board effectiveness evaluations and overseeing how well the decision taken by the fund management company and the arrangements for the supervision of delegates are working in the interests of investors.

PART III

Directors' Time Commitments

1. The Central Bank considers that a reasonable number of working hours available for each individual is approximately 2000 per year. This is based on a 9 hour day and 230 working days per annum. This 'total' time allocation should be considered by individuals when taking on new directorship roles and should include all professional commitments including other directorships and employments held. Directors should satisfy themselves, and their boards, that they have sufficient time to fully discharge their duties.
2. Directors and boards should agree a minimum time allocation for board meeting attendance; this should include all necessary preparation, review of documents and also, where appropriate, travel time. The agreed minimum time allocation should be documented in the director's letter of appointment in line with paragraphs 5 and 6 of this Part.
3. Sufficient time should be set aside as a buffer for directors to deal with ad hoc issues that arise from time to time. This should be in addition to the normal time allocated to each director role.
4. Additional time should be allocated where a director carries out a Chairperson role. This time allocation should be agreed with each board and be commensurate with any additional work that this role requires.
5. A designated person role for managerial functions should be considered separately to the role of director. A separate time commitment should be allocated for each such designated person role and should be commensurate with any additional work that this role requires, including remuneration received. The time allocated should take into account, inter alia, the on-going oversight role, daily availability, report review and onsite visits to delegates.

6. A separate letter of appointment should issue in respect of a designated person role for managerial functions. This should include a written contract setting out the job specifications, the time expectations and the fee arrangements for the role. The separate letters of appointment should be subject to annual review by the board and made available to the Central Bank upon request.
7. Individuals with multiple directorships should consider the conflicts which may arise when sitting on a number of boards and the corporate interconnectivity that is created. Conflicts which may occur between individuals with full-time positions in a service provider to the board should also be considered and the most appropriate action taken.
8. In addition to the number of directorships, individuals should consider the additional time required to deal with the number of underlying sub funds within one investment fund. The type and complexity of individual investment funds and sub-funds should also be considered carefully by individuals when assessing both the required time commitment and the necessary expertise needed at board level to oversee the investment fund.
9. Individuals should also take into account the number of different client relationships they have entered into when assessing time commitments.
10. Directors should be fully aware of the regulatory and legal obligations of differing types of boards and legal structures prior to any board appointments.
11. Membership of board committees should also be regarded as a separate role and should be included in any assessment of director time commitment and availability.
12. The ultimate responsibility for compliance with all regulatory obligations rests with the boards and the individual directors. Extensive director commitments without sufficient awareness and consideration of the corresponding impact may lead to significant governance risk.

Central Bank engagement

13. The Central Bank will directly engage with those individuals with high numbers of directorships combined with high aggregate levels of annual professional time commitments to ensure their legal obligations and responsibilities as board members are being met and will monitor directors' commitments so as to avoid any potential risk that governance standards may be weakened.
14. The Central Bank intends to treat high levels of directorships combined with high aggregate levels of annual professional time commitments as a risk indicator. Where any risk indicator is triggered, additional supervisory attention is appropriate under the Central Banks risk-based approach to supervision. Accordingly, in the rare case of the proposed appointment of directors who already hold in excess of a defined number of directorships (including directorships outside of the investment fund industry and directorships within the funds industry outside Ireland) and a defined number of annual hours representing aggregate professional time commitments the Central Bank will:
 - Request a letter from each board which will set out the proposed time commitment for that director in accordance with paragraph 4.5 of the IFIA Code;
 - Withdraw from corporate Qualifying Investor AIF which propose such a director, the option of the 24 hour authorisation time-frame. In each such case the Central Bank will be considering additional enquiries which will not be capable of being completed within that timeframe.
15. Previously authorised investment funds which continue to have individual directors who hold more than the defined numbers of directorships and aggregate hours representing annual professional time commitments after 1st January 2016 will be given priority consideration for inclusion in Central Bank thematic reviews where board effectiveness is being tested in any respect.
16. The Central Bank is initially setting that risk indicator in terms of a joint test of (a) having more than 20 directorships and (b) having an aggregate professional time commitment in excess of 2000 hours. These numbers may be reviewed from time to time, having regard to the typical burden on directors and changes in the environment impacting on regulatory risk. The fact that directors hold less than the referenced numbers of directorships and annual hours of professional time commitments does not, of course, obviate the need for the whole of this guidance to be had regard to and the publication of this risk indicator should not be read in that way.

PART IV

Managerial Functions

Purpose of this guidance

1. The purpose of this guidance is to set out the Central Bank's expectations regarding how persons who conduct managerial functions ("Designated Persons") should carry out their roles.

The role of Designated Persons

2. The Central Bank has identified six key managerial functions for fund management companies – Capital and Financial Management; Operational Risk Management; Fund Risk Management; Investment Management; Distribution; and Regulatory Compliance. The Central Bank requires fund management companies to identify an individual, known as a Designated Person, who will be responsible for monitoring and overseeing the managerial function assigned to him or her. It is possible for a Designated Person to oversee more than one managerial function. Furthermore, the same Designated Person may carry out the managerial functions of (i) fund risk management and (ii) operational risk management. However, he or she may not perform the investment management managerial function and either the fund risk management managerial function or the operational risk management managerial function.
3. Designated Persons should receive separate letters of appointment from fund management companies. The letter of appointment should include inter alia the time commitment involved and the rate of payment. Where a director acts as a Designated Person, he or she should receive two letters of appointment – one for the role of director and one for the role of Designated Person.
4. Designated Persons are a fund management company's line of management that lies between the board of directors and delegates. They ensure that the strategies, policies and directions issued by the board are acted upon and complied with. Designated Persons monitor and oversee compliance by a fund management company with its regulatory obligations. They report to the fund management company's board on a regular basis and escalate issues to the board where pre-defined parameters are exceeded or where the Designated Person judges that immediate escalation is warranted.

5. It is clear that the board of directors is not involved in managing a fund management company on a day-to-day basis. This task is delegated to the Designated Persons by the board of directors. If a fund management company delegated tasks to third parties and did not have Designated Persons in place, then the fund management company would have no-one within the fund management company responsible for its management on a day-to-day basis. It would be entirely dependent on the delegates to manage the tasks delegated to them without sufficient managerial oversight by the fund management company on a day-to-day basis. A fund management company that operated on this basis could be one which had delegated to the extent that it might be a letterbox entity within the meaning of the relevant legislation.
6. Designated Persons will not necessarily be the persons who are carrying out all of the tasks which fall within their scope of responsibility. For example, the Designated Person - Capital and Financial Management will not be the person who prepares the accounts for the fund management company and the investment funds under management. The Designated Person will likely manage fund management employees or oversee delegates who carry out these tasks. In managing those employees or overseeing those delegates, the designated person will review their work on an on-going basis to ensure that it is being carried out properly and that the policies and directions issued by the board are acted upon and that regulatory obligations are being complied with.
7. Fund management companies are under regulatory obligations to act in the best interests of the investors in the investment funds under management. This obligation applies to any Designated Persons engaged by a fund management company. Designated Persons should be mindful of this obligation when carrying out their roles, particularly where the fund management company is part of a larger group of companies or where the Designated Person is also engaged by another entity within that group. The letter of appointment or other contractual arrangements between a fund management company and a Designated Person should specifically provide that the Designated Person must put the best interests of investors in the investment funds under management ahead of any other interests.

8. Designated Persons can be directors or employees of the fund management company. Alternatively, they can be seconded to the fund management company, on a full or part-time basis, from another firm such as the investment manager or a firm which specialises in the provision of Designated Persons.
9. The organisational and structural arrangements put in place by a fund management company should not create any obstacles to the supervision of that fund management company and the investment funds under its management by the Central Bank.

Capacity of Designated Persons

10. In order to assess whether work is being carried out properly, that instructions are being followed and that no issues are arising, Designated Persons should normally have experience and expertise in the managerial function they are managing or, otherwise, evidence as would satisfy a reasonable person as to their capability. For example and by way of analogy, the Central Bank would not expect a MiFID firm to appoint a Head of Risk where that person had no knowledge or experience in the field of risk management. A Designated Person should have enough knowledge in the area they are managing to interrogate the information being provided to them and constructively challenge their employees or delegates.
11. Designated persons should understand the managerial function they have responsibility for and should be up-to-date on latest developments in order to perform their role effectively. They should be familiar with their managerial function and with the investment funds under management. They should be able to address queries raised, for example by boards or the Central Bank, in a fashion which demonstrates reasonable knowledge of the operations of the fund management company and those investment funds and any issues affecting them.
12. Designated Persons should be sufficiently senior in their role such that their challenge of delegates carries weight and authority and they are the appropriate individuals to meet with the Central Bank as part of the Central Bank's supervisory engagement process. For example, if a Designated Person occupied a role within the fund management company's organisation which was more junior than the delegates he or she was monitoring and overseeing, he or she may be unable to challenge delegates effectively.
13. Designated Persons should have enough time available to them to carry out their roles thoroughly and to a high standard.

Documenting the delegation of tasks

14. Where a fund management company delegates the performance of tasks, each delegate should know precisely what is being delegated to them. This should be documented in written contractual arrangements in a manner determined by the fund management company. It is not enough to assume that because a delegate is authorised, it will discharge the regulatory obligations placed on the fund management company. The delegate may not be subject to equivalent regulatory obligations. Where it is, it may not be carrying out these tasks to the same standard as required by the fund management company's regulatory obligations. For example, an AIFM should not assume that because it has delegated investment management to an authorised entity, the investment manager is carrying out all of the liquidity management obligations placed on the AIFM by Regulation 18 of the EU (AIFM) Regulations 2013. The written contractual arrangement between the fund management company and the investment manager should include one or more contractual provisions which will ensure that the investment manager carries out its tasks in a manner consistent with the EU (AIFM) Regulations 2013 and EC (UCITS) Regulations 2011, as applicable, and the parameters instructed by the fund management company.

Policies and procedures

15. Fund management companies are required to maintain a number of documented policies and procedures. In many instances, the fund management company will rely on the policies and procedures of its delegates or its group to satisfy its own regulatory obligations. Where this is the case, it is not appropriate for the fund management company to rely on the fact that its delegate is an authorised entity subject to its own regulatory obligations concerning policies and procedures. The fund management company must maintain its own written policies and procedures in each instance where this is required by regulation – it cannot rely on the delegate's written policies and procedures to satisfy the fund management company's obligation to have its own written policies and procedures. Where a fund management company intends to rely on the substance of its delegates' policies and procedures, the fund management company's policies and procedures should document:

- that this is the case;
- how the fund management company has satisfied itself that relying on its delegates' policies and procedures will ensure that it is complying with its regulatory obligations i.e. how the fund management company has mapped its regulatory obligations against those of its delegates;
- how the fund management company will test that the delegates' policies and procedures are being complied with;
- the frequency with which the fund management company will review its policies and procedures;
- the role of the relevant Designated Person.

16. A fund management company should also follow this approach where it proposes to rely on its group policies and procedures.

Allocation of regulatory obligations to managerial functions

17. Each fund management company should review the regulatory obligations placed on it and should identify precisely under which managerial function each regulatory obligation falls. This systematic approach of allocating regulatory obligations to managerial functions will ensure that a fund management company has identified each regulatory obligation and that there is a Designated Person with responsibility for overseeing each such regulatory obligation. It will ensure that no obligations are unmonitored. It also helps Designated Persons to understand the expectations placed on them so that they can allocate and price their time accordingly.
18. Annexes I and II set out a framework of how the Central Bank believes the regulatory obligations set out in the EU (AIFM) Regulations 2013 and EC (UCITS) Regulations 2011 (including Level 2 measures) respectively could be allocated to each managerial function. Fund management companies may decide that, for that company, particular regulatory obligations should be attributed differently. The precise allocation of regulatory obligations amongst managerial functions is not as important as ensuring that the exercise is undertaken and that each specific regulatory obligation is individually attributed to a specific managerial function. Annexes I and II contain requirements stemming from the EU (AIFM) Regulations 2013 and EC (UCITS) Regulations 2011 (including Level 2 measures). The fund management company must also take account of other regulatory obligations (e.g. Central Bank UCITS Regulations, AIF Rulebook, EMIR, MiFID, MAD, etc.) and may wish to perform a similar allocation on an obligation by obligation basis for those other regulatory obligations.

Coordination with boards

Delegate Oversight Guidance

19. The Central Bank's Delegate Oversight Guidance identifies six distinct areas where boards should direct specific attention in the oversight of delegates. These areas are aligned with the key managerial functions for fund management companies. Accordingly, fund management companies should ensure that Designated Persons for the corresponding managerial function are responsible for monitoring and oversight of the approaches and strategies approved by the Board. This means that the Designated Person – Investment Management should monitor and oversee compliance with the investment approach, the Designated Person – Distribution should monitor and oversee compliance with the distribution strategy and so on.

Reporting from Designated Persons to the board

20. Designated Persons should be satisfied with or be responsible for the production of management information, or equivalent, for the board (or board sub-committee as appropriate), so that the conduct of the Designated Person's work receives both appropriate monitoring by the board on a regular basis and on an exceptional basis where issues arise.

Escalation to the board

21. Designated Persons should propose and agree with the board appropriate thresholds and key performance indicators which trigger immediate escalation from delegates and Designated Persons to the board. In addition, Designated Persons should immediately escalate matters to the board where they judge that this is warranted.

Performance of managerial functions

22. Designated Persons are responsible for performing the managerial functions assigned to them. A large part of performing this role involves close monitoring and oversight of employees and/or delegates. Fund management companies should consider and agree with the Designated Person how it expects the Designated Person to carry out this monitoring and oversight.

Performance of managerial functions - Monitoring and oversight of regulatory obligationsMatters of fact

23. Some regulatory obligations are rules where compliance is a matter of fact. For example, an internally managed AIFM must have initial capital of at least €300,000 and an external AIFM must have initial capital of at least €125,000. Compliance with this rule is objectively verifiable – either the AIFM has the requisite capital or it does not.
24. Where a regulatory obligation – matter of fact falls within a Designated Persons' remit, he or she should ensure that it is evident from the reporting he or she receives that the fund management company is complying with the rule.

Matters of judgement

25. There are a number of regulatory obligations where compliance is not a simple objective matter and where a fund management company is required to exercise judgement. For example, an AIFM must ensure a high standard of security during the electronic data processing and integrity and confidentiality of information.

26. Where a regulatory obligation – matter of judgement falls within a Designated Persons' remit, he or she should receive sufficient reporting and have sufficient expertise to assess whether the judgement made is reasonable. This assessment should be documented so that the rationale for it can be explained if it is queried at a later time.

Matters requiring design

27. The regulatory frameworks set out a number of obligations for fund management companies to have policies and procedures ('P&Ps') in relation to a certain matter, have a particular organisational structure or establish a limit. Appropriate P&Ps, structures and limits must be (i) designed, (ii) implemented and complied with on an on-going basis and (iii) reviewed periodically. Designated Persons should have a role in each of these three tasks proportionate to being a key representative of the fund management company in meeting the obligation.

(i) Design

28. Designated Persons, using their expertise, should advise on the design process and should assist with the creation of the structure or preparation of the P&P or the setting of the limit that is appropriate for the fund management company and investment funds under management given nature, scale and complexity considerations subject to the approval of the board. Boards should provide input, should constructively challenge proposals where they see fit and should approve structures, limits and P&Ps.
29. A fund management company may receive assistance from its delegates or engage third parties to aid the design process. However, it will be ultimately the board of the fund management company's responsibility to ensure that it has designed appropriate structures or limits or P&Ps and the Designated Persons should provide assistance and advice in relation to this process.

30. The Designated Person should ensure that the fund management company documents why the proposed structure, limit or P&P was reasonable and appropriate.

(ii) Implemented and complied with

31. Once designed, the structure must be established, the P&P must be put into action or the limit must be imposed and complied with on an on-going basis. It is part of the Designated Person's role to monitor and oversee this subject always to the higher level of monitoring and oversight by the board itself, any sub-committee and the person responsible for assessing organisational effectiveness.

(iii) Reviewed periodically

32. Designated Persons should keep structures, limits and P&Ps under on-going review to determine whether they remain appropriate. For example, increased market volatility may mean that current leverage limits are not appropriate and so a fund management company may wish to consider whether decreasing a leverage limit is appropriate in the new environment. Designated Persons should advise the board where they believe a change should be considered and should make a proposal to the board for its review, consideration and approval. Changes to structures, limits and P&Ps should be a matter for the board, and in some cases unitholders, to decide upon.

Frequency of monitoring and oversight

33. Fund management companies should, among other things, review each of the regulatory obligations attributed to each managerial function and consider the frequency of interaction appropriate. The frequency of monitoring and oversight, including the frequency of receipt of information from delegates, should be determined based on the activities of the investment funds under management. This includes but is not limited to:
- the complexity of the investment strategy;
 - the markets in which the investment fund operates;
 - the types of investment instruments utilised;

- the underlying investment activities (as positions are bought and sold);
 - the frequency of investor subscriptions/redemptions;
 - the utilisation, valuation and security of margin and/or collateral;
 - the number of and functions provided by fund service providers; and
 - the use of efficient portfolio management techniques.
34. For example, a proposal whereby the Designated Person – Investment Management received monthly reporting in relation to an investment fund that deals and trades in complex securities on a daily basis might not be viewed favourably whereas a proposal to receive reporting on a monthly basis for an investment fund that pursues a long-term buy and hold strategy may be acceptable.
35. In addition to regularly scheduled monitoring and oversight, more frequent review should occur on an ad hoc basis where circumstances demand this, for example where breaches are occurring or where market volatility has increased.
36. Designated Persons should monitor the tasks for which they are responsible on a day-to-day basis. This does not necessarily mean that monitoring and oversight has to take place daily – although this might be the case. As described above, the frequency of monitoring and oversight will be driven by the activities of the fund management company and its investment funds under management. Furthermore, the Designated Persons should have the capability to review delegates on a continuous basis and should be available on a day-to-day basis.

Reporting from delegates to Designated Persons

37. It is important that the reporting received by Designated Persons provides them with the information necessary to oversee and monitor compliance by the fund management company with its regulatory obligations, limits, P&Ps and any directions issued by the board. Accordingly, fund management companies should create a monitoring and oversight framework that allows Designated Persons to receive the information necessary to carry out their roles. Designated Persons should assist in this process.

38. Fund management companies should be able to demonstrate compliance with limits and P&Ps at all times. Accordingly, Designated Persons should ensure the monitoring and reporting framework designed allows the fund management company to comply with this obligation.
39. Designated Persons should have expertise in their managerial functions such that they can review the information received and interrogate it to identify actual or potential issues. Receiving reports which only identify exceptions would not be sufficient in this regard. A summary of relevant information concerning each investment fund under management would be more appropriate. This should summarise the activity in the investment fund over the period, any breaches which occurred or any flags raised and underlying trends.

Meetings between Designated Persons and delegates

40. Designated Persons should hold regular meetings with delegates. These could be in the form of sub-committee meetings, conference calls, physical meetings or a combination of these. Designated Persons should also perform on-site visits of delegates.
41. These meetings could be less frequent than the regular reporting frequency but more frequent than the board meeting schedule. For example, an arrangement whereby the Designated Person – Investment Management for an investment fund with activity on a weekly basis had regular reporting on a weekly basis, meetings with delegates on a monthly basis and attended quarterly board meetings might be appropriate.

Approach to information received from delegates

42. Designated persons should approach information received from delegates with healthy scepticism. They should not necessarily accept such information at face value and should interrogate information received. Designated persons should constructively challenge employees and delegates and should follow up on issues raised to ensure that they are concluded satisfactorily.

43. Designated persons may be relying on confirmations from employees or delegates that tasks are being carried out properly. There is a risk to the fund management company that a confirmation is incorrect i.e. that a designated person has received a confirmation that a task is operating normally when that is not the case. A designated person might receive an incorrect confirmation because the employee or delegate has made a mistake or does not have the expertise necessary to interpret information and provide an accurate confirmation or is deliberately attempting to misinform the designated person.
44. Fund management companies should consider instances where this risk might arise and how it could be mitigated. There may be someone better placed to provide a confirmation or it may be possible to receive a secondary confirmation from another independent source. For example, a fund management company may seek confirmations from both its investment manager and its legal advisers concerning the contents of a new prospectus or from the fund administrator and external auditor concerning the contents of annual reports.
45. Designated Persons should record their engagement on reports received. Where a Designated Person enquires further into information received from a delegate, a record of this engagement should be retained. Evidence of constructive challenge by Designated Persons and interrogation by Designated Persons of the information received by them might point towards a fund management company which is well managed and that takes compliance with its regulatory obligations seriously.

ANNEX I – Obligations on AIFMs

This Annex lists obligations placed on AIFMs by Level 1 and Level 2 of the AIFMD. Further obligations are placed on AIFMs by other legislation and rulebooks (e.g. the AIF Rulebook). Obligations highlighted in green apply to each AIF under management. Obligations highlighted in blue will only apply if the AIFM or the AIFs under management engage in certain activities (e.g. if they acquire control of non-listed companies).

PART V

Operational Issues

Record retention, archiving and retrievability

Introduction

1. Regulation 123 of the UCITS Regulations 2011 provides the Central Bank with broad powers to request information from inter alia fund management companies. The Central Bank UCITS Regulations 2019 will provide that fund management companies are required to keep all of their records in a way that makes them immediately retrievable in or from Ireland. Similar rules will apply to AIFMs. In the context of these rules, the Central Bank is of the view that ‘immediately’ means documentation requested before 1pm (Irish time) should be provided to the Central Bank on the same day and documentation requested after 1pm (Irish time) should be provided to the Central Bank before 12 noon on the following day on which the Central Bank is open for business.
2. The purpose of the record retention, archiving and retrievability guidance is to provide fund management companies with the Central Bank of Ireland’s (the “Central Bank”) minimum expectations with respect to the retention, maintenance, security, privacy, preservation and accessibility (collectively, “Document Management”) of all relevant documentation and records.
3. Document management is particularly important for fund management companies because engagement with the Central Bank is substantially based on such documentation and records. For example, when the Central Bank meets representatives of a fund management company in Ireland and asks them to produce a record of the fund management company (such as board minutes, policies and procedures, letters of engagement, contracts with delegates, reports to Designated Persons), they should be able to produce this record immediately. Furthermore, document management, and the content of documentation and records will be a principal means by which the Central Bank can assess, evidence and establish:

- (i) the control and resources of a fund management company;
- (ii) compliance with relevant laws, regulations, conditions and rules;
- (iii) the quality of oversight, governance and control provided by the directors and Designated Persons; and
- (iv) the fitness and probity of directors and Designated Persons.

Relevant Documents

4. By documentation and records, the Central Bank is referring to both:
- (i) documentation and records pertaining to the fund management company including those demonstrating the governance of the fund management company; and
 - (ii) documentation and records pertaining to all investment funds under the management
- (collectively, “Relevant Documents”).
5. While not a definitive or exhaustive list, and solely for illustrative purposes, Relevant Documents may include many of the documents listed below :

Responsibility for record management policies and procedures

6. It is the individual responsibility of each fund management company to independently determine its own record management policy and procedures, including what documents are relevant to its particular circumstances and operation. The record retention policy should:
 - (i) be approved by the directors of the fund management company and reviewed on an annual basis;
 - (ii) be actively enforced and audited (internally or externally);
 - (iii) be appropriate for the fund management company's nature, scale and complexity; and
 - (iv) take into consideration not only business and operation requirements, but also the requirements of all applicable laws, regulations, conditions and rules respecting the fund management company and its investment funds under management.

Minimum Requirements

7. Decisions on whether Relevant Documents should be retained in hard or electronic format, as original or copy documentation, the location(s) where Relevant Documentation are stored, the period of retention, the method for retrieving Relevant Documents, ensuring immediate and unfettered access to Relevant Documents, security, privacy, and the document destruction policy is strictly a matter for the fund management company's directors to determine, subject to relevant laws, regulations, conditions and rules.
8. When engaging with a fund management company, the Central Bank will expect, at a minimum:

- a clearly defined and understandable records retention schedule outlining where documents are stored, e.g. 3rd party, within the organisation, the location of the record, the format of storage, the classification of the document being stored, the date stored, the minimum retention period, the date of destruction, the method of destruction, the document owner, the records manager and any other information deemed relevant by the organisation;
- Relevant Documents should be easily identifiable as pertaining to the fund management company and the investment funds under its management and the governance of both;
- A full audit trail of Relevant Documents should be available. In particular, the Central Bank will require reasonable assurances and proof that there are sufficient procedures and processes in place which will robustly protect against and seek to avoid any manipulation of hard copy or electronic (soft-copy) documents and record any manipulations should they occur;
- Relevant Documents should be sufficient to demonstrate both control and compliance with the provisions of relevant laws, regulations, conditions and rules;
- the fund management company should have immediate and unfettered access, from the State, to Relevant Documents;
- immediate and unfettered access to Relevant Documents means equally access to documents held locally (in Ireland) and remotely (in other jurisdictions), including those held within group companies and third party service supplier network;
- immediate and unfettered access to Relevant Documents means that documents are readily accessible, easily retrievable and available on request by the Central Bank within the time periods set out in paragraph 1;
- For meetings with the Central Bank at the registered offices of the fund management company, the attending directors and Designated Persons should be in a position to produce all Relevant Documents upon request by the Central Bank; and

- the fund management company's directors should ensure, through contractual arrangements or by other means, that they and the Designated Persons have and will retain at all times immediate and unfettered access to all Relevant Documents.

9. A fund management company that fails to provide any Relevant Documents in the timeline and form reasonably required by the Central Bank may be viewed by the Central Bank as not having provided the Relevant Documents in compliance with the regulatory requirements described in paragraph 1.

Maintenance of designated and monitored email addresses

10. Section 22 of the Central Bank (Supervision and Enforcement) Act 2013, Regulation 123 of the UCITS Regulations 2011 and Regulation 48 of the AIFM Regulations 2013 each provide the Central Bank with broad powers to require inter alia fund management companies to provide the Central Bank with information within such time as it may specify. To ensure that fund management companies are in a position to comply with those requirements and to facilitate effective and efficient communication between the Central Bank and fund management companies, each fund management company should maintain a designated email address. The purpose of the designated email address is to allow the Central Bank to, among other purposes:
 - (i) send letters, including formal letters, to the fund management company or investment fund;
 - (ii) request meetings;
 - (iii) issue surveys or requests for information;
 - (iv) disseminate industry letters and notes; and
 - (v) more generally act as a portal for other fund management company/supervisory related communication activities, (collectively "Central Bank Communications").

11. The designated email address should:
 - (i) be approved by the directors of the fund management company as the designated email address;
 - (ii) be continuously monitored. By continuously monitored, the Central Bank means that on at least a daily basis the designated email address should be checked for any communication(s) from the Central Bank. It is a matter for the fund management company to determine the processes and procedures by which the designed email address is monitored;
 - (iii) have appropriate security, data protection and privacy processes and procedures implemented around the designated email address to ensure compliance with all applicable laws, regulations, conditions and rules; and
 - (iv) have sufficient capacity to accommodate a regular level of communication from the Central Bank.

12. A Fund Management Company may choose to maintain a single email address for the fund management company and all investment funds under management or as separate dedicated email addresses for the fund management company and for each investment fund under management.

13. The person monitoring the designated email address should have the relevant expertise to ensure that Central Bank Communications are correctly considered and, where required, forwarded to the relevant party to address the content of the communication.

14. Central Bank Communications should be addressed within the time frame provided in the communication. Procedures and processes around the ongoing monitoring and onward transmission of Central Bank Communications should factor in such time frames. Adherence to such time frames and the quality of information received will be a principal means by which the Central Bank can assess, evidence and establish:
 - (i) the control and resources of a fund management company;

- (ii) the quality of oversight and governance provided by the directors and Designated Persons; and
 - (iii) the fitness and probity of directors and Designated Persons.

- 15. Changes to a designated email address must be communicated to the Central Bank via the Online Reporting System as a “Regulatory Report”. Changes to a fund designated email address should be communicated within five business days to the Central Bank.

- 16. Communication to the Central Bank will continue by means of normally established channels or as outlined in the Central Bank Communications. The Central Bank may periodically test the effectiveness and efficiency of the designated email address.

The policy should indicate if voting rights will be exercised or not, or provide for the circumstances where a determination will be made to exercise voting rights. Details of any situations or events of which the applicant fund management company is aware which impact, or may potentially impact on the applicant fund management company in any way should be included in the application.

Submission of parent company's accounts

42. The Central Bank may request that a fund management company submits the annual audited accounts of the direct parents of the fund management company together with the accounts of any company within the group specified by the Central Bank.

Capital requirement

43. The capital requirement of a fund management company is set out in Regulation 17 of the UCITS Regulations and/or Regulation 10 of the AIFM Regulations. However, the Central Bank reserves the right to increase this amount should it be deemed not to reasonably reflect the current position of the fund management company.

Investment companies that have not designated a fund management company (“self-managed investment company”)

44. Regulation 42(4)(a)(i) of the UCITS Regulations and/or Regulation 10(1) of the AIFM Regulations each require a self-managed investment company to have initial capital of €300,000. In the case of newly established investment companies, the board of directors of the investment company should confirm compliance with this requirement and provide an original bank statement to the Central Bank as evidence of such compliance.
45. The initial capital requirement may be provided to an investment company by the promoter/investment manager and may be withdrawn upon receipt of subscriptions into the company to the value of €300,000 provided that the company maintains a minimum of €300,000.
46. With regard to paragraph 15, a director of the promoter may endorse the IQ of a proposed director of the investment company.

Relationship with the Central Bank

47. A fund management company should be open and co-operative in its dealings with the Central Bank and with all other relevant supervisory authorities.
48. A fund management company should participate in such meetings as the Central Bank considers necessary to review its operations and its business developments. The fund management company should, for the purposes of such meetings supply any additional material as may be specified by the Central Bank, including internal auditors’ reports, operating procedures and management letters issued by the fund management company’s auditors and/or by the auditors of investment funds under management. In addition, the Central Bank may conduct inspections of the operations of a fund management company if these are deemed necessary or appropriate.

49. A fund management company should respond to correspondence and to any requests for information from the Central Bank in a timely and thorough manner and within any period of time that may be specified by the Central Bank.
50. The Central Bank may request information on investment funds not authorised by the Central Bank in its role as supervisor of Irish authorised fund management companies. Such requests do not imply any regulatory or supervisory role for the Central Bank in respect of such investment funds.

Fund management company passport - General

51. A fund management company authorised by the Central Bank may carry on activities for which it has been authorised under the UCITS Regulations and/or AIFM Regulations in another Member State either by the establishment of a branch or under the freedom to provide services. This is commonly known as the 'fund management company passport'. Regulations 27 and 28 of the UCITS Regulations and Regulation 34 of the AIFM Regulations set out the procedures which a fund management company authorised by the Central Bank should follow if it wishes to avail of the fund management company passport. The purpose of this part of the guidance is to provide guidance to assist these fund management companies.
52. Fund management companies authorised in other Member States which wish to carry out, within the State, activities for which they have been authorised should refer to Regulations 26, 31 and 32 of the UCITS Regulations. AIFMs authorised in other Member States which manage Irish AIFs should refer to Regulation 34 of the AIFM Regulations.
53. Prior to transmitting the fund management company passport proposal, the Central Bank intends to engage with the competent authority in the fund management company's proposed host Member State. The purpose of this engagement is to identify whether there are any significant local requirements which:

- are imposed on investment funds established in that jurisdiction;
- the fund management company would be required to discharge; and
- would impact on the complexity of providing services in that specific jurisdiction.

Fund management company passport - Managing non-Irish investment funds

54. Generally, the Central Bank would expect a greater level of resources where a fund management company proposes to act as manager to non-Irish investment funds given the additional scale and more complex nature of the business involved. The Central Bank will review each fund management company passport proposal on a case-by-case basis to determine whether the fund management company is sufficiently resourced.

Corporate governance issues

55. A fund management company managing non-Irish investment funds should have sufficient knowledge of the local regulatory regime in Member States into which it passports. For example, the fund management company would need to know the types of breaches which need to be reported to the investment fund's competent authority and the timeframe for this reporting. The fund management company should also have some appreciation of the marketplace and any particular issues of concern or topical issues in the investment fund's home Member State.
56. Regulation 112(2)(b) of the Central Bank UCITS Regulations provides that a UCITS management company should describe in its programme of operations how it will monitor compliance with regulatory requirements that are applicable in the home state of the relevant investment fund on a day-to-day basis. This may involve creating an additional managerial function. Alternatively, this could fall within the remit of one of the existing managerial functions (e.g. regulatory compliance) provided the incumbent member of staff/designated person has or can quickly develop the requisite expertise.

57. The fund management company may need to have representatives available to travel to the investment fund's home Member State to attend and report at board meetings of the investment fund where the investment fund is structured as an investment company. This will increase the number of meetings which fund management company representatives should attend – they will attend the quarterly board meetings of the fund management company itself and the board meetings of each of the investment fund under management. The fund management company may also need to have representatives available to travel to deal with service provider issues as and when they arise.
58. Increasing the number of investment funds under management adds to the scale of fund management company supervisory work. Fund management companies applying to manage an investment fund in another Member State on a freedom of services basis must ensure that personnel are able to allocate the necessary time need to carry out the managerial functions, attend board meetings as well as possessing expertise to discharge their duties that relate to the relevant funds under management.
59. Regulation 112(2)(d) of the Central Bank UCITS Regulations requires a UCITS management company to include in its programme of operations an analysis of the impact that managing an investment fund that is authorised in another Member State is likely to have on its minimum capital requirement. This will assist the Central Bank in determining whether it has reason to doubt the financial situation of the fund management company in accordance with Regulation 27(2)(a) of the UCITS Regulations.

Administrator issues

60. The administrator will have staff who work on the investment fund on a day-to-day basis and who may have a more intimate knowledge of the day-to-day operation of the investment fund than the non-executive directors of a investment fund management company. Where an Irish administrator is engaged, the Central Bank can have direct access to these staff by virtue of its role as regulator of that entity. However, where a non-Irish administrator is appointed, these staff may not be directly available to the Central Bank. Accordingly, Regulation 113(3) of the Central Bank UCITS Regulations requires that the programme of operations addresses how the fund management company will ensure that its staff/designated persons with the requisite detailed knowledge of the day-to-day operation of the investment fund will be available to the Central Bank.

Fund management company passport - Notifications

61. A key component of the notification made by a fund management company pursuant to Regulation 27(1) or 28(1) of the UCITS Regulations or Regulation 34(3) of the AIFM Regulations will be the programme of operations.
62. It is not envisaged that the programme of operations will be the existing business plan of the fund management company. While relevant extracts from the business plan may be appropriate, the Central Bank expects that the programme of operations will be a concise yet comprehensive outline of the fund management company's proposal to passport, setting out all the required elements under the UCITS Regulations or AIFM Regulations and including details of the types of funds to be managed, resources to be applied, delegation arrangements to be put in place and details of how the fund management company proposes to monitor such delegates, including access to records of the delegates as appropriate.
63. The Central Bank considers that a completed notification has been received when all of the information and documentation required by the UCITS Regulations or AIFM Regulations has been received and all of the queries raised by the Central Bank have been adequately addressed.
